Senate committee approves transportation budget

FRANKFORT (AP) — A $4.5 billion transportation budget cleared the Senate Appropriations and Revenue Committee on Thursday, but not before Republicans inserted language that would restore nearly $50 million in road construction projects that had been vetoed by Democratic Gov. Steve Beshear.

Appropriations and Revenue Committee Chairman Bob Leeper cited a “fit of conscience” for his push to restore the money, saying Beshear unfairly removed the projects earlier this week. The projects were all in the district of Beshear’s chief Republican rival, Senate President David Williams.

“I’m a firm believer in trying to do the right thing, and I don’t think that was the right thing,” said Leeper, an independent from Paducah.

The appropriations bill, which includes funding to widen interstate highways and expand airports, now advances to the Senate floor for a planned vote on Friday.

Since Monday, lawmakers have been meeting in a special legislative session that’s costing taxpayers about $60,000 a day. Beshear called them back to Frankfort to pass the transportation budget and a bill intended to curb prescription drug abuse after they concluded the regular annual session without doing so.

The drug bill is tentatively set for votes in the Senate Judiciary Committee and on the Senate floor today.

Beshear has sharply criticized Williams in recent days, charging that his unwillingness to pass a transportation budget in a regular legislative session that ended last week forced the special session that has cost some $240,000 so far.

The Senate had refused to pass the transportation budget until Beshear signed the road construction plan. Neither side was willing to budge before time ran out in the regular session.

As leaders in their respective parties, Williams and Beshear have been at odds for years. Beshear has pushed unsuccessfully to oust Williams as Senate president by trying to elect enough Democrats to overturn the GOP majority. Beshear has even appointed Republican senators to lucrative

WMU assessing pilot program

By Katie Perkowski
The Winchester Sun

Winchester Municipal Utilities officials will decide how to move forward with the Holiday Hills recycling program after a comprehensive study of the utility’s solid waste operations is complete, officials said at a WMU Commission meeting Thursday.

“With the information collected during the pilot project as well as other factors in the rapidly changing solid waste market, the WMU Commission has determined that a comprehensive study of the solid waste utility is warranted,” read a letter drafted to Holiday Hills customers from WMU General Manager Mike Flynn. The letter has not been mailed yet.

Flynn said 512 of the 539 households in Holiday Hills signed up for the service since it started on Aug. 5, 2011. Even though that

ALCOHOL AWARENESS

GRC students open play about underage drinking

By Katie Perkowski
The Winchester Sun

A group of Clark County students will take the stage at Leeds Theatre next week to educate the public on the dangers of underage drinking.

The Clark County Agency for Substance Abuse Policy and George Rogers Clark Youth Network will put on “Not my kid! Why Not?” from 7 to 9 p.m. on Friday, April 27. The play is a first for the youth network, said ASAP coordinator Janna Smith, and is staged in conjunction with Alcohol Awareness Month.

“They developed an idea and we just took off with that idea and created this play about different situations that teens get themselves into when they drink at a party,” Smith said. “And so they’re really excited about doing that play for everyone. And with it being at Leeds then they get to be up on stage, so it’s fun for them.”

“They developed an idea and we just took off ... and created this play about different situations that teens get themselves into when they drink at a party. ”

— JANNA SMITH
CLARK COUNTY ASAP COORDINATOR

Kayla Harrison, a senior at GRC and member of the youth network, said the group is “trying to show the dangers of different situations you can go through when you’re under the influence.”

During one part of the play, GRC sophomore Matthew Omohundro’s character goes to a party where he is convinced to drink. He ends up getting sick because of it, he said.

Due to the attention on prescription drug abuse in the nation, Smith said, the issue of underage drinking gets put on the backburner at times.

“In the media, prescription drugs is issue number one right now, but teenagers most of the time will start with alcohol and work their way into other substances,” she said. “We felt like it would be a good month to really highlight underage drinking and how it’s still an issue because more teens drink alcohol than use tobacco or marijuana.”

Following the play, members of the youth network will give a presentation on alcopops, or alcoholic energy drinks. Two current Clark County Drug Court participants, Josh Bryant and Amanda Palmer, will share their story of addiction.

Mayor Ed Burtner, who lives in Holiday Hills, estimated that the number of people actually using the service was much lower. "And somehow or another, you need to get the point across to the neighborhood that it's important that they participate, that they use the service. And that if they don't use the service, that that's not a good thing," he said. "I mean it's certainly not a good thing in terms of the utility community trying to make this work and make it happen." Just 25 percent of the Holiday Hills customers are actually using the recycling service, Burtner estimated, and that point should be stressed in the final letter sent out. "They will share their story about how they started using substances and how they started using alcohol and how it really led to a cycle of addiction that they really didn't intend to happen, like nobody really does," Smith said. "And then the process they've gone through with drug court and how they're getting ready to graduate and what their future looks like now." A local author, Nicole Webb, who wrote the book "Not Against My Son," will then talk about her book for the first time.

"It talks about the issues that she went through with her teenage son and how she dealt with them and (it) just provides alternative ways for parents to deal with the issue of underage drinking and drug use with teenagers," Smith said. "The younger a teen starts drinking, (it) raises the risk of dependence when they get older," she said. "And that's regardless of family history of alcoholism. So, if we can delay these kids from drinking until they get a little bit older, are more mature, then they may not have a dependence on alcohol when they get older." Admission is free.

and incentive programs. Forty-four Kentucky high schools currently participate in the program. Winners receive $2,000 and an expenses-paid trip to Washington, D.C., May 23-26 for the awards dinner. Criteria used to select the winners is based almost entirely on AP test scores, specifically the percent pass rate and the increase in the number of students who passed compared to the previous year. In the past five years, the number of students taking AP classes at GRC has increased dramatically. Five years ago, only three students passed the AP calculus exam. That number went up to 34 students two years ago, and climbed to 62 students last year, and Parks said he expects at least 80 students to pass the exam this year. Those increases helped Parks win the award, but he was quick to give the credit to his students and fellow teachers.

"Like a lot of successess that seem to happen overnight, all the AP score increases at GRC are the result of a lot of people working together over the past few years — counselors, administrators, teachers for the pre-AP courses and, most importantly, the students," Parks said. "I'm flattered to be receiving credit for the scores, but I've never once taken an AP exam. The students take the exam, so they're the ones who handle the pressure and stress of taking it and preparing for it. I'm really proud of what they've accomplished." Clark Schools Superintendent Elaine Farris said she was proud of the work all the AP teachers have done to get more students involved in taking AP classes at the high school, and said Parks epitomizes the work going on at GRC. "Steven Parks is a gifted teacher. His classroom is a place where students want to learn and perform at their optimal ability. He delivers instruction that engages his students and creates instructional tasks that are relevant but rigorous," Farris said. "He teaches and provides structure in his classroom to ensure the academic success of his students. He is truly a master teacher and we are blessed to have him teaching our students." Parks said AdvanceKy and the math and science initiatives have made more students realize they too can take AP classes. "Most importantly, AdvanceKy has helped our school re-think what it means to be an AP student," Parks said. "We have more students taking the AP classes right now than ever before, more students passing AP exams than ever before, and in my opinion, more students better prepared for college than ever before."

Parks said the award has made him "really appreciate the opportunity to work at GRC and to work with young people who are incredibly driven and intelligent," and he doesn't think this will be the last award the school will receive. "There are a lot of very talented teachers teaching AP courses right now and I really think we'll have another NMSI teacher of the year winner next year," Parks said. "It's really a good time to be an AP student at GRC." Parks has been teaching at GRC for seven years. He and his wife Jen have three children, Michael, 6, Joseph, 4, and Hadley, 2.

GSA Vegas conference only tip of the iceberg

WASHINGTON — You knew government bureaucrats were living large when they hired a medium. And this mind reader who helped government workers communicate with the dead was just the beginning of the scandal involving the General Services Administration's $823,000 spending spree in Las Vegas. There was also the $75,000 bicycle-building exercise, the clown show, 1,000 sushi rolls at $7 a pop, $6,325 spent on commemorative coins, $8,130 for souvenir books and 300 helpings of "Boursin Scalloped Potato with Barolo Wine Braised Short Ribs" at $5 each.

Dana Milbank

Jeffrey Neely, the official responsible for the 2010 soiree said he wanted his conference to be "over the top." By all accounts, he achieved his goal, and now the party's over. Neely was hauled before the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee on Monday afternoon for the first of several congressional hearings about the GSA scandal. He listened as lawmakers and former colleagues denounced his activities — and then answered by taking the Fifth. "Mr. Neely, what is your title at GSA?" asked Chairman Darrell Issa, R-Calif. Neely, who had demanded "theatrical talent" at his conference, got to demonstrate his own. "Mr. Chairman, on the advice of counsel, I respectfully decline to answer based upon my Fifth Amendment constitutional privilege."

"Mr. Neely, did you attend the 2010 Western Regional Conference in Las Vegas?" "Mr. Chairman, on the advice of counsel, I respectfully decline to answer based upon my Fifth Amendment constitutional privilege," repeated the witness.

Issa continued to press, assuring Neely "just a few more" questions, as though he were a dentist completing drilling on a patient. He finally excused the witness and asked him to "remain for the remainder of the hearing" in a back room. But Neely had no interest. Instead, slipped out a back door, and reporters and camera crews gave chase. Fox News' Chad Pergram and other reporters followed Neely into an elevator and, ignoring his lawyer's demands that they disperse, continued to pepper him with questions. Among them: "Will you apologize?"

"No comment" was all Neely said.

He had rather more to say when planning the conference. According to emails discussed at the hearing, Neely offered to pay for personal friends to come have a "blast" on the government's dime. "I know. I am bad," he wrote. "But as Deb (his wife) and I say often, why not enjoy it while we have it and while we can. Ain't going to last forever."

He had that right. "Well, Mr. Neely, it stops now," thundered Rep. Elijah Cummings of Maryland, the committee's ranking Democrat, who was particularly offended that Neely's wife, "ordered thousands of dollars' worth of food at taxpayer expense."

Committee Democrats and GSA officials portrayed Neely as a bad apple. Meanwhile, Republicans labored to turn what happened in Vegas into an administration-wide scandal. "As I look through this, there's no wonder that the American people have lost faith in their government," harrumphed Pennsylvania Rep. Mike Kelly.

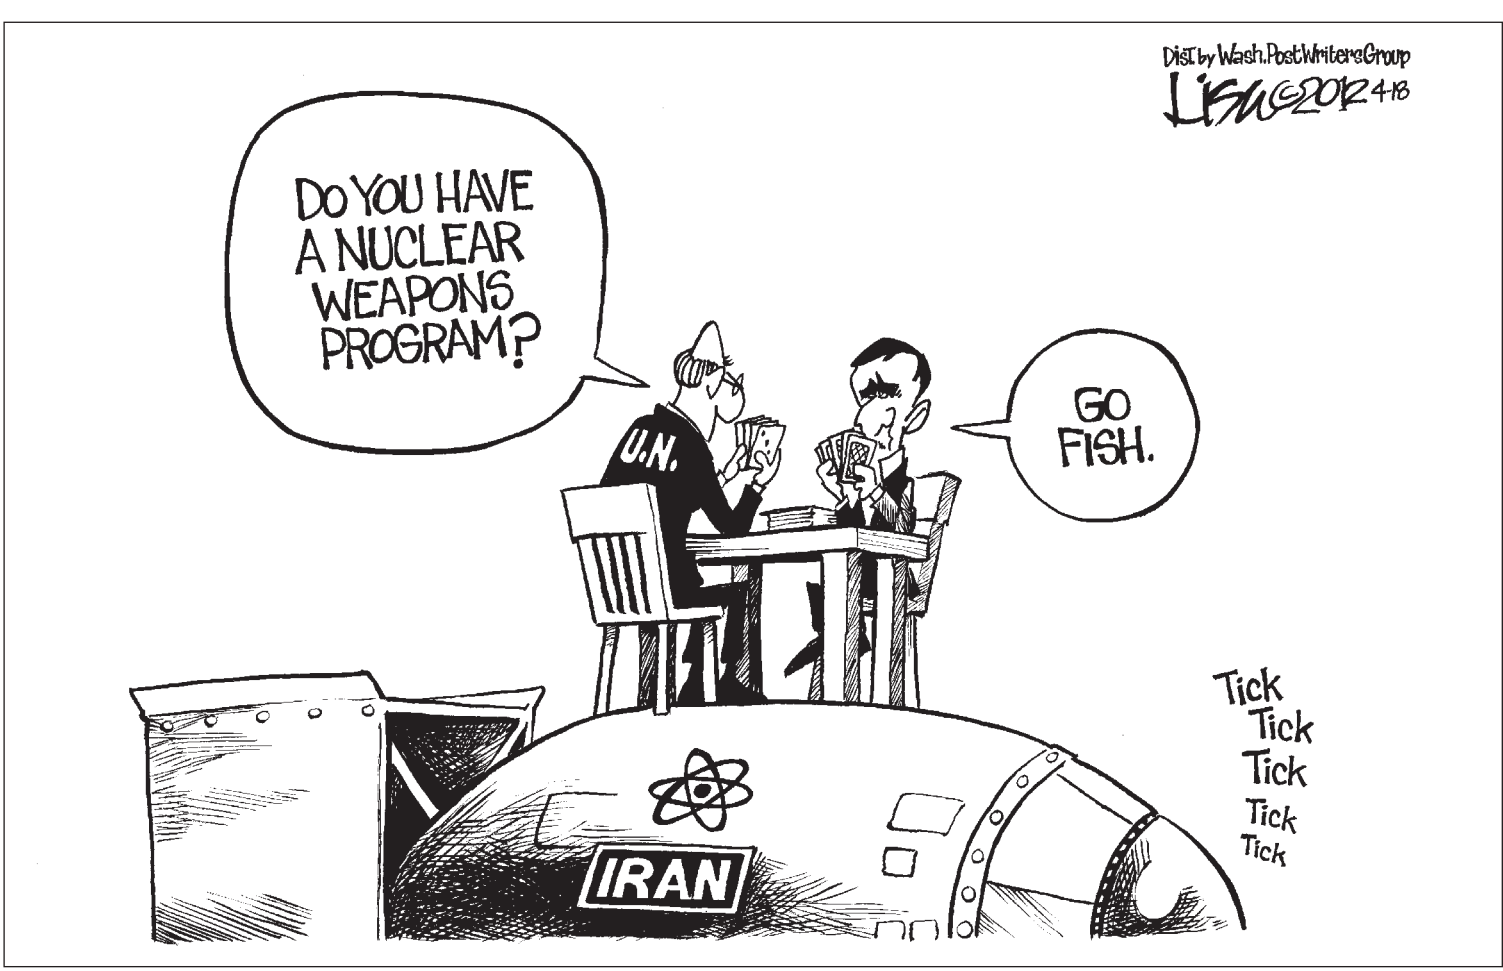

"I want indictments!" bellowed Rep. Trey Gowdy of South Carolina. With a preacher's fervor, he compared the bureaucrats unfavorably with their biblical forbears. "The tribes of Israel sent 12 scouts into the Promised Land before they decided to invade, and GSA had to send 15 to Las Vegas to check out a hotel? Do you not see the outrage?"

This outrage was undercut by a fellow Republican, Rep. James Lankford of Oklahoma, who argued that "there was something that was happening that was very unique" at the Las Vegas event. Indeed, it is not every government event where the "artisanal cheese" is $19 per person and the commemorative coins cost $20 apiece. Or where they make a rap video joking about what their congressional overseers would have to say about their excess. Why did they do this?

"I have no idea what Mr. Neely was thinking," said one witness.

Maybe they should hire a mind reader.

Pomp and circumstance

It'll be quite a ceremony — you could even call it a spectacle — at Fayetteville, Ark., come Sunday. It seems Bill Clinton is due back at the University of Arkansas, where he once taught law, to deliver the first in a new lecture series named after Dale Bumpers and his wife Betty. It's a perfect pairing when you think about it. For it was Dale Bumpers who represented the former law professor, attorney general of Arkansas, and president of the United States at his impeachment trial and, even more impressive, got him off.

Paul Greenberg

Now the duo share billing again. It'll be like the old days. Only this time recollected in tranquility. It's as if the actors were to stage a reunion long after the curtain had fallen on a farce.

Of course, Dale Bumpers would want Bill Clinton there, and of course Slick Willie — now Slick William in his dignified older years — would accept the invitation. To put it as plain as only folk wisdom can, one hand washes the other — as sure as night follows day, celebration acquittal, and academic honors high office. There'll be no need to go into any inconvenient details on this auspicious occasion. They say a good memory is a great asset, but it's nothing compared to the advantages of a good forgettery.

O Mencken! Thou shouldst be living at this hour! The mutual flattery should be hip deep, and the speechifying grandiloquent — a many-splendored thing. Also, a grand exercise in historical amnesia, political discretion and general vapidity of the highest order. What is said may not be memorable — the speaker, after all, will be Bill Clinton — but what goes unsaid will surely resound. At least among those with memories that resist later editing.

There is a kind of genius in knowing just what not to say on such occasions. Both honorees showed a real talent for it in the course of their long and distinguished political careers. See the former president's testimony under oath, and his able counsel's folksy defense of it.

Dale Bumpers may have begun his involvement with this case by defending only one lie in a sordid little matter, but he was soon playing games with the historical record, too. So does one falsification lead to another. It happened like this:

Sen. Bumpers chose to close out his distinguished 24-year career in the United States Senate with an eloquent farewell address (all of his addresses are eloquent) in which he used a great quote from Harry S. Truman. It was his warning about the danger that the country courts when it has a president who can't be trusted to tell the truth:

"The only time this country ever gets into trouble is when there is some so-and-so in the White House lying to the American people."

The quote turned out to be an unfortunate choice, and the senator's timing even more so. For that was just before Mr. Bumpers would return to the Senate to defend his presidential client by saying, among other dubious things, that some lies by a president really shouldn't be taken all that seriously.

The big problem with that selective approach to truth is that, once truth has been declared expendable where one subject is concerned, the truth about anything else becomes contingent on whether it suits our political purposes, too. And we are left unmoored. Bill Clinton only practiced moral relativism; in defense of his client, Dale Bumpers raised it to a philosophy.

The quotation from Harry Truman about the dangers of presidential dissimulation remains a jewel, if a kind of diamond in the rough. For when Mr. Truman told it with the bark off, the result was a kind of folk art.

Dale Bumpers said hearing Harry Truman talk about the importance of telling the truth was a Defining Moment in his own life, but he would soon enough forget it. At least officially. For when his valedictory address appeared in the Congressional Record, the quote from Mr. Truman had disappeared.

Vanished. Gone. Down the memory hole. The official record had been "corrected."

When the omission in the official record was noted, it was blamed on somebody else. Some unidentified underling on the senator's staff must have dunnit.

Could it have been the senator himself who'd erased the quote from his speech? Oh, no, it had gone missing when "some staff member was cleaning it up," explained the Honorable Dale Bumpers.

The senator's loyal staff backed him up: He'd had no role in the deletion, they claimed. The senator hadn't even known about the omission. Case closed. The usual anonymous suspect had been rounded up. All was in order.

Ten years passed in the usual blur. The body had been buried, the questions interred. Any doubts lay a-molderin' in the grave. But somewhere deep, conscience must have stirred. Because that's when Dale Bumpers fessed up, or came close to it. "Whatever the staff did," he said, "I probably instructed them to do." Because when things were edited out of the official record, he admitted, "I did most of it myself."

Some of us had suspected as much, though I for one wasn't about to say so — not without a confession. Or at least a semi-confession like this one. Call it a hang-up from a brief, inglorious stint as a court reporter for the estimable Columbia Missourian in Harry Truman's home state.

All journalism students at Mizzou were assigned beats on the local paper so we could learn the trade under the watchful eyes of veteran editors. They taught us not to leap to conclusions — and that you never, ever fiddle with a direct quote. It was a useful lesson. Dale Bumpers might have profited by it.

Some of us still miss Harry Truman. His candor could be embarrassing — just ask Bess — but he was no moral relativist. His aye was aye, his nay nay.

When work is a family matter

CHICAGO — Last week, the U.S. Department of Homeland Security sent out an unusually cheerful press release: "Border Patrol Academy Graduates 1000th Class."

Forty-five newbies got through the Border Patrol Academy at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center (FLETC) in Artesia, N.M., one of the most rigorous federal law enforcement academies in the nation. It has graduated nearly 41,000 students — after months of coursework in marksmanship and horsemanship, studying immigration, customs and drug laws, plus firearm and physical training — since offering its first session in 1934 in El Paso, Texas. At the ceremony, Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano said, "Today, we have the largest, best trained, and best equipped Border Patrol we've had at any time in our nation's history, and I'm proud of all the brave men and women who dedicate themselves to this important work."

More than a third of those brave men and women employed by the agency are Hispanic. Imagine the minefield a Hispanic employee of DHS has to walk through when attending family get-togethers where someone might give you the evil eye — or a full-on tongue-lashing — for working for "la migra."

Over the years I've interviewed Hispanic Border Patrol and Immigration and Customs Enforcement agents, immigration detention facility officers and related agency spokespersons. They've all smiled — broadly, ruefully — when asked "What's it like being Hispanic in your line of work? What does your family say? How do you respond to the inevitable 'how could you?'"

Answers range from "we don't talk about it" to "they're OK with it," and "I don't care about those who call me a sellout or a traitor." Usually they have at least one horror story about a relative who refuses to be in the same room with them at holiday parties — sometimes their relatives are immigrant activists. Many describe how they change the subject when someone tries bringing up contentious immigration-related subjects. Most say it's "usually not a problem."

A few months ago, I had the opportunity to ask a graduate of FLETC about how he deals with the emotionally thorny issue with family and friends. He told me that sometimes people bug their eyes out when they learn that anyone of Hispanic descent could work at an agency that has become synonymous with deporting Latin American immigrants, but that DHS is a great place to build a career.

The agency certainly provides lots of opportunities. According to DHS' Equal Employment Opportunity Program Status Report for fiscal year 2010, Hispanics were the largest minority group of employees, representing 19 percent of the workforce — compared to Hispanics' 15 percent share of the civilian labor force. In U.S. Customs and Border Protection, Hispanics represent 35.8 percent of the total workforce. For all the flack that DHS gets from immigrant and Hispanic advocacy groups, it is undeniable that the department provides good-paying professional jobs for Hispanics. All controversy aside, many of them get hired on without a high school diploma or college degree — Border Patrol, for instance, is one of the few large law enforcement agencies that don't require them. That's quite a bridge to the American dream. So congratulations to the 1,000th graduating class of the Border Patrol Academy. May your work be fulfilling, your careers exemplary — and may your family leave politics out of the potlucks and the fiestas.

Dogs the latest weapon in fight against bed bugs

By Joanna King
Advocate-Messenger

Dewayne Taylor is a Junction City councilman by night and a hired killer by day.

He works for Four Seasons Pest Control, “all over Kentucky,” in both private homes and with commercial contracts. His job includes exterminating bed bugs, a pest that has made a comeback in the United States since the use of DDT was discontinued.

“I see ads with companies guaranteeing to get rid of them, but no reputable company would say such a thing,” said Taylor. “We treat and, if needed, we treat again. You go on vacation and bring them back, and we treat again. It’s probably going to be an ongoing battle.”

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention say the bugs carry no diseases but, like mosquitos, feed on blood and can cause itchy red, welt-like bites. They can hitchhike into homes on the bottoms of shoes, luggage or infested furniture and hide in places like crevices of mattresses and behind headboards attached to walls. One of the tell-tale signs of their existence is dark-stained splotches in the seams of mattresses or box springs or bedside upholstered chairs. The stains are the dried excrement produced from digesting human blood.

Taylor said the real damage an infestation does is to people’s nerves. “It’s mentally a strain. The nerves get all tore up.”

When treating homes for bed bugs, Taylor wears a hazmat suit that he throws away afterward.

“The main thing is to keep people out after we apply chemicals,” he said. “At least six hours, but I’d say 24 to be certain.”

Joanna King/The Advocate-Messenger
Dave Lucas and Twix live and work together as a bed bug detection unit for Orkin.

In addition to chemicals, there’s a new weapon in the fight to eradicate bed bugs — dogs. A home infested with bed bugs smells like over-ripe raspberries. Dogs already work hard sniffing out drugs and bombs and people trapped in rubble after disasters. Turns out, man’s best friend can be trained to detect bed bugs, even one tiny egg hidden for training purposes.

Twix, a beagle/basset mix, was probably about 2 years old when a trainer from one of the companies Orkin uses, K9 Operations in Romulus, Mich., got her from a rescue shelter and sent her to school.

Dave Lucas, who has been with Orkin in Cincinnati since 1997, saw a bulletin in an employee newsletter soliciting in-house for an employee interested in becoming a handler for a bed bug detection dog.

Lucas applied, and soon the two were partners.

“We went to school together for three and a half weeks,” Lucas said. “The key was to get us working together as a team.”

Besides areas in Ohio, they go to locations in Indiana and Kentucky from Louisville to Lexington.

Sometimes people call and ask specifically for a dog, and other times the company suggests the service.

Given the confidence in their expertise, customers are nearly always satisfied.

“I’ve had customers cry on me, and we leave some very happy,” Lucas said.

2011 bad year for measles

ATLANTA (AP) — Health officials say last year was the worst year for measles in the U.S. in 15 years.

There were 222 cases of measles reported. Most of the cases were imported — either by visiting foreigners or by U.S. residents who picked up the virus overseas.

Health official say outbreaks in the U.S. have been fueled by low vaccination rates in Europe and elsewhere.

There were no deaths in the U.S. but about a third of the people were hospitalized. At least two-thirds of the Americans who got the measles hadn’t been vaccinated.

Man arrested after Facebook post

JENKINS (AP) — There it was on Facebook for all to see — Michael Baker with a gas can, a siphon hose stuck into a police cruiser and a middle finger raised defiantly.

Among those who saw it were Jenkins Police officials. They arrested 20-year-old Michael Baker on Monday and charged him with theft by unlawful taking.

Baker told WYMT-TV in Hazard there wasn't much fuel in the car to siphon and the stunt on Friday was intended as a joke. Baker's girlfriend snapped the photo and posted it.

Police didn't laugh. Chief

Allen Bormes said if Baker would steal from police, he'd steal from "just about anybody."

Authorities say they plan to buy lockable gas caps.

ASAP proclamation signed

Katie Perkowski/kperkowski@winchestersun.com
During the Clark County Agency for Substance Abuse Policy board meeting, Winchester Mayor Ed Burtner read a proclamation declaring April as Healthy Choices, Healthy Communities Prevent Underage Drinking Alcohol Awareness Month. Alcohol, he said, is a primary factor in the four leading causes of death for people ages 10-21, and adolescents use alcohol more than tobacco or illicit drugs. Pictured with Burtner are members of the George Rogers Clark High School ASAP Youth Network, Clark County Sheriff Berl Perdue Jr., County Commissioner Vanessa Rogers and Clark County ASAP coordinator Janna Smith.

The Band's Levon Helm passes at 71

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — With songs like “The Night They Drove Old Dixie Down,” “The Weight” and “Up on Cripple Creek,” The Band fused rock, blues, folk and gospel to create a sound that seemed as authentically American as a Mathew Brady photograph or a Mark Twain short story.

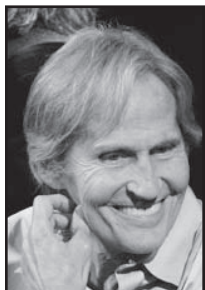

In truth, the group had only one American — Levon Helm.

Helm, the drummer and singer who brought an urgent beat and a genuine Arkansas twang to some of The Band's best-known songs and helped turn a bunch of musicians known mostly as Bob Dylan's backup group into one of rock's most legendary acts, has died. He was 71.

Helm, who was found to have throat cancer in 1998, died Thursday afternoon of complications from cancer at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York City, said Lucy Sabini of Vanguard Records. On Tuesday, a message on his website said he was in the final stages of cancer.

Helm and his bandmates — Canadians Rick Danko, Garth Hudson, Robbie Robertson and Richard Manuel — were musical virtuosos who returned to the roots of American music in the late 1960s as other rockers veered into psychedelia, heavy metal and jams. The group's 1968 debut, “Music From Big Pink,” and its follow-up, “The Band,” remain landmark albums of the era, and songs such as “The Weight,” “Dixie Down” and “Cripple Creek” have become rock standards.

Early on, The Band backed Dylan on his sensational and controversial electric tours of 1965-66.

Small plane sinks into Gulf; no sign of pilot

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A pilot flying a Cessna across the Gulf of Mexico stopped responding to radio calls including those from two F-15 aviators who flew alongside and monitored the plane for hours as it made a corkscrew path through the sky before crashing into the ocean Thursday, authorities said.

Coast Guard crews saw no signs that the pilot — the lone person aboard — survived. The plane landed right-side up on the ocean surface and had been floating right after the crash, said Chief John Edwards. However, the Cessna 421C later sank into the Gulf about 120 miles west of Tampa, Fla., in about 1,500 feet of water.

The plane was headed from Slidell, La., to Sarasota, Fla., and controllers lost contact with it about 9 a.m. EDT, said Federal Aviation Administration spokeswoman Kathleen Bergen. The plane went down about 12:10 p.m. and authorities were investigating but have released no information about what may have gone wrong.

The New Orleans National Guard jets were already on a mission over the Gulf when Jacksonville air traffic controllers asked the military if it could check on the plane that was orbiting near one of Eglin Air Force Base's warning areas over the Gulf, Edwards said. The fighter jets caught up with the plane and reported that it was fluctuating between 25,000 and 35,000 feet and its windshield was iced over.

They could not hail the pilot, whom authorities have not identified.

Bill Huete, a mechanic at the Slidell Airport, said Dr. Peter Hertzak, an OB-GYN who worked in the community just northeast of New Orleans, was the only person who piloted the plane. Huete said the doctor's wife told him her husband was flying the plane that morning.

Huete had worked on the plane for Hertzak and has known the doctor and his family for years.

“I met him years ago when he was looking to start flying again and bought this plane,” said Huete.

A computer-generated image provided by FlightAware, a private aviation flight path service, shows the plane traveling in several circles over the Gulf before going down. A C130 and a helicopter looked for debris from the submerged plane, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Elizabeth Borderland. A cutter would remain in the area all night, she said.

Huete described Hertzak as an excellent pilot. “He flew by the book and he didn't scrimp on maintenance,” Huete said.

No one answered the door at an address listed for Hertzak and calls to the home rang unanswered.

Test Your Play

Odd incidents occasionally occur in major tournaments. For example, there was the time some years ago when a young Polish pair, representing their country for the first time in the annual world championship, arrived at a dreadful grand-slam contract. When the opening lead was made and dummy appeared, it became obvious to the declarer that his partner had overbid his values by at least two tricks. Declarer looked at the dummy, then looked at his partner and said, "That dummy is an insult to Poland!"

If you were West on the hand below, you might have similar feelings if you reached Six Spades due to partner's optimism. However, they don't allow you to back up and change the contract, so the question is how to proceed after North leads the ten of clubs (assume the missing trumps are divided 3-1 or 2-2).

WEST
♥ K J 10 9
♦ A K 3
♠ A 10 2
♣ A 3 2

EAST
♥ A Q 8 7 6
♦ 7 6
♠ Q 5
♣ J 6 5 4

West
♦ J
♦ 10
♦ 3

South
♦ 9 8

The only genuine chance for the slam is to find South with the doubleton K-Q of clubs, as well as the king of diamonds. Accordingly, you play low from dummy, and South, luckily for you, produces the queen. You next cash three rounds of trumps and continue with the A-K and another heart, ruffing in dummy. Then you play the club five, taken by South with the king. You naturally hope South will return a diamond away from the king, which would hand you the slam, but he cleverly leads a heart instead.

After discarding a diamond and ruffing the heart with dummy's last trump, you return the queen of diamonds, covered by the king and ace. Miraculously, you are now on the verge of making the contract if North holds the jack of diamonds. You hope he started with a hand such as:

If that's what he was dealt, he will run into terrible trouble when you next lead the jack of spades in this position:

Whatever North discards on the spade jack, you make the slam. Of course, you should also be sure to congratulate your partner on the brilliant sequence of bids that allowed you to reach this dreadful contract!

Tomorrow: A tough combination to beat.

HOROSCOPE

©2012 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, April 20, 2012:

This year you discover your inner reclusive side. Others might express their worry or be taken aback. Respond openly to their inquiries, as much as you can. Most likely, you will be enjoying your downtime. If you are single, you could meet someone who is emotionally unavailable. Be careful before you plunge into a new relationship. If you are attached, the two of you will spend a lot of time together and enjoy it. Make sure you get enough R and R. A fellow TAURUS can be pushy!

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★ You keep putting your best foot forward, but someone continues to step on it. Be more in touch with how much you offer and give. You will see the difference quite quickly when you approach others with this newfound awareness.

Tonight: Buy a few items to spruce up your wardrobe.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Keep an even pace; take a power nap if need be. A New Moon in your sign promises a new beginning. You want to be the captain on the ship of your life, not just a passenger. Do not allow someone's negativity to become a burden. Tonight: All smiles.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★ You have been thinking through some life decisions, even if you haven't necessarily wanted to. You might be on the verge of making them a reality. Be aware of the implications of your decisions. A child or loved one is out of sorts.

Tonight: You can decide to do nothing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ Get past someone's demand, or handle a responsibility. By midafternoon, you'll tend to be more gregarious. Whether you're at a lunch meeting or a social happening, you seem to say and do the right things. Make the most of the moment. Tonight: Do not allow today's mood to get the best of you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★★ Quickly make calls, reach out for others and get to the basis of an issue without coloring the story by personal bias. Someone might make a demand or request that forces you to take the lead; make it your pleasure. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ Deal with calls and people individually. You could be unusually uptight about a situation and allow it to color your day. Pull back to see if this is the case. Take a walk, detach and approach others with a new attitude. What a difference that could make! Tonight: Go with something offbeat.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★ Try to curb a tendency to self-sabotage. You have been unusually negative or touchy lately. Others might approach you, but head in another direction before they say much if they catch a whiff of your attitude. Tonight: Work on being optimistic.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ Your effort to preserve a situation might backfire. You cannot fight change — not emotionally, personally or professionally. Go with the flow, and trust that something better is ahead. Later today, you could sense a change in the air and in how you feel. Tonight: Join an acquaintance you do not see often.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ Listen to your inner voice. You sense that you might want to get out the door or start the weekend early. Listen to a child or loved one; he or she will encourage you to go with spontaneity. Think before you leap. Tonight: Let your energy make the call.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★ Tension builds and causes a problem when you interact with authority figures. Know when to pull back and opt for a less public stance. A personal or domestic issue needs more attention at this point. Try not to juggle as much right now. Tonight: You do not need to go far.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ Keep communication flowing, even if you don't exactly understand what is happening. In your mind, you sense that someone is holding back. Accusation will not work, but eventually he or she will let the cat out of the bag. Tonight: Visit with a friend on the way home.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★ Someone could be asking for what you cannot give. This person might not understand why you refuse to go along with his or her request. Distance yourself for now. In the near future, you could get past this resistance. Tonight: Head home, then decide.

Nelson to unveil statue in pot protest

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Country music legend Willie Nelson was expected to help unveil an 8-foot statue of himself in downtown Austin on Friday, which happens to be a national day of protest for the legalization of marijuana. The privately funded monument near the new Moody Theater shows Nelson in a relaxed, standing pose and holding his guitar to the side, as if in conversation. Philadelphia sculptor Clete Shields said the leaning pose and heroic scale are intended to show Nelson's openness and whimsical side while honoring his tremendous influence on music and the city. Nelson is a 10-time Grammy Award-winning musician who has sold more than 40 million copies of 105 albums in a career built on not conforming to country music norms. The unveiling takes place on April 20, or 4/20, which is slang for smoking marijuana and a day pro-legalization forces have used for annual gatherings to demonstrate in support of the cause. Nelson is a well-known advocate of legalizing marijuana and has been arrested several times for possessing it.

Nugent dropped from Fort Knox show

FORT KNOX (AP) — Rocker Ted Nugent, who drew the attention of the Secret Service with comments that some perceived as a threat against President Barack Obama, has been removed from the lineup of a concert at Fort Knox. The News-Enterprise in Elizabethtown reports the post said Thursday the annual summer concert June 23 will still feature REO Speedwagon and Styx, and a replacement may be selected. Speaking at a National Rifle Association meeting in St. Louis last weekend, Nugent said of the Obama administration: "We need to ride into that battlefield and chop their heads off in November." He also said he would be "dead or in jail by this time next year" if Obama is re-elected. The Secret Service confirmed it is investigating. Nugent has said he was just speaking figuratively.

SIXTH MAN KENTUCKY BASKETBALL

Producer Jason Epperson poses with fans at Rupp Arena. Epperson and fellow producers argue that no other athletic program, professional or collegiate, has a fan base as dedicated as Kentucky's.

Filmmakers Jason Epperson, Lee Cruse, Steve Bates and Tim Bates wanted the inside story on what makes University of Kentucky supporters so unique. What they found was complete ...

FAN- ATICISM

Only in Kentucky do people wait in line for days to get tickets to Big Blue Madness, rather than seeking treatment for a broken arm.

Only in Kentucky are basketball season tickets part of divorce settlements.

Only in Kentucky will you find a fan base quite so passionate, quite so zealous.

Those are the stories filmmakers Jason Epperson, Steve Bates, Lee Cruse and Tim Bates want to tell.

In "The Sixth Man," the producers hope to highlight the special breed of sports fandom only found in Kentucky, both the positives and the negatives.

"There's no other fan base that cares like UK fans care," Epperson said. "As far as the collegiate level, there's nothing that even comes close."

As a lifelong Kentucky fan, Epperson said he has been interested in doing a project focused on basketball in some capacity, but never felt he had the right idea at the right time. During the 2010-2011 season, he and fellow producers began filming, but didn't become serious about the project until the 2011-2012 season.

The idea to focus on the fans came when Steve Bates heard his sister talking about the unique fans in Kentucky.

"It was like, 'Ding! That's it,'" Bates said of the idea.

With so much hype surrounding the team that would eventually become the 2012 national champions, the group knew the time had to come to make the documentary a priority. After Kentucky's Final Four run in 2011, Bates said the producers were worried they had missed the perfect opportunity to document fan reactions.

"We said, 'This is it, no excuses,'" Bates said.

Epperson is best known for his appearance on reality TV show "The Lot," a competition between up-and-coming directors. Cruse is the morning and 12:30 p.m. field anchor for WLEX news.

Epperson, Cruse, and Steve and Tim Bates acknowledge their own fandom but, as they see it, that makes them the perfect people to tell the story.

"It is such a big event, it's such a big organization, and it's seismic in its movement. Somebody's gonna do a documentary on it. ... We prefer to tell our own story, as opposed to someone in New York or L.A.," Cruse said. "It's an honest portrayal, but it's not a hit piece."

The film includes interviews with former players, like Josh Harrellson, and former coach Joe B. Hall. Even a few Winchester fans, including Rob Pedigo, who helped create the UK fan site Tailgate Review, will be featured.

Fans can find updated information about the project and view clips at www.facebook.com/6thmanmovie.

Producers are shooting for an October release date, in conjunction with 2012 Big Blue Madness. They are currently working on a distribution deal, and would like to host screenings of the film throughout the state. With so many Winchester people involved in the project, Cruse and Epperson did not reel out a Winchester premier, though nothing formal has been planned yet.

Information will be available on the Facebook page.

Throughout the filming process, Epperson said he has learned he's "not as big of a fan as I thought I was."

No matter how deep a fan's devotion, Epperson said, there is always going to be someone willing to go one step further.

"It's all crazy. It makes no sense, but I still understand it. I may not be as zealous as they are (fans chronicled in the film), but I have new empathy," Cruse said.

And the filmmakers are adamant that there is no fan in the world like a Kentucky fan.

"We make a pretty good case that it's the most passionate fan base in the history of sport. It may be Alabama football, Notre Dame football, the New York Yankees or Manchester United over in England, but we always come out on top," Cruse said.

A promotional video available on Facebook and Vimeo compares the Big Blue hype to a religion.

"It is everything to the Commonwealth," Cruse said in the video.

Even reviled former Duke University basketball player Christian Laettner shares some perspective: "It's been 20 years. Get over it."

An unidentified fan waiting for tickets to Big Blue Madness, when asked about the madness, can only come up with one explanation: "It's Kentucky basketball."

Noel officially is a Wildcat

LEXINGTON (AP) — Kentucky has announced the Wildcats have received Nerlens Noel's letter of intent, adding the highly touted 6-10 center as the centerpiece of an expected fourth straight No. 1 recruiting class under coach John Calipari. Noel averaged 12.6 points, 7.2 rebounds and 3.9 blocks per game as a senior for the Tilton School in New Hampshire. Noel is rated the top high school player in the class by two major scouting services. Noel joins Archie Goodwin, Alex Poythress and Willie Cauley as part of Kentucky's new class. The signing period ends May 16. Calipari says Nerlens is an unfinished product like freshman Anthony Davis. Davis led Kentucky to a national title and picked up every major player of the year award before declaring for the draft on Tuesday.

S. Carolina ends pact with Western

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — South Carolina has canceled the final two games of its men's basketball contract with Western Kentucky. The Gamecocks agreed to play the Hilltoppers four times after South Carolina hired coach Darrin Horn away from Western Kentucky in 2008. But South Carolina athletic director Eric Hyman says the school wants more flexibility in scheduling after firing Horn in March and replacing him with former Kansas State coach Frank Martin. The Hilltoppers and Gamecocks played twice, with South Carolina winning both games.

The George Rogers Clark baseball team stretched its winning streak to seven games with a 7-3 triumph over Harrison County Thursday afternoon. The contest was originally scheduled to be played in Cynthiana, but was moved to Winchester Thursday because of field issues at Harrison County High School. The win evened Clark's record at 7-7, while the Thorobreds fell to 11-5 on the season. Clark got a solid outing from pitcher Logan McQuerry, who went the distance and got the win. McQuerry scattered eight hits in seven innings of work. McQuerry gave up three runs — one of which was earned — walked just one batter and struckout five. Harrison County pitcher Brandon Kendall fanned 10 Clark batters in six innings and gave up seven runs, four earned. The Thorobreds scored three times in the third inning and led 3-1 going into the fourth frame, but the hosts took the lead for good with a four-run outburst in the fourth inning. Hunter Osborne and Scotty Turner highlighted the team's offensive performance in the inning with run-scoring doubles. McQuerry added a two-bagger in the fifth frame. Brent Stoneking and Osborne paced Clark's offense with two hits apiece, while Pokey Harris, Taylor Howard, McQuerry, Turner and Luke Sharrock chipped in with one hit apiece. Clark is scheduled to compete in the Greenup County Invitational this weekend.

The George Rogers Clark boys tennis team swept Harrison County 5-0 Thursday in Cynthiana. In singles, Cameron Colvard defeated Jacob Markley 8-0, while No. 2 seed Ian Rowe beat Corey McCauley. See PREP, B4

Growing up

By Keith Taylor
The Winchester Sun

George Rogers Clark softball coach Matt Puckett admits his team is young, but likes the way the Lady Cardinals are competing going into the final month of the regular season. "It's been a learning experience with such a new group coming in," the Clark coach said. "Losing five seniors and six starters (from last year), we started off a little rocky, trying to get ourselves a little established, but the girls are starting to buy into it (the program) more now and I think they're seeing the light at the end of the tunnel. They're realizing that they can play some ball, especially competing with Montgomery County and Bourbon County." Puckett said his team started to come around after a 3-2 loss to 40th District favorite Montgomery County on April 12 in Mount Sterling. Clark picked up a big district win earlier this week with a 5-3 triumph at Bourbon County. Clark has already swept district rival Paris. "We played Montgomery to the wire and a couple of plays here and there, we would have had that game won," Puckett said. "In the Bourbon game, we were extremely loose and had a light practice the day before. We just hit the ball, had eight hits and didn't make an error. Whitney Conkwright threw a marvelous game and we just shocked a lot of people by getting that win. That's hats off to the girls for their hard work. "They're starting to get their confidence back. With the confidence coming, and the hitting and the pitching, we're starting to get better and hopefully it will pay off. See GROW, B4

sweep

ST. LOUIS (AP) — It was a day of firsts for several Cincinnati Reds hitters. And another day to forget for Adam Wainwright. Brandon Phillips homered for his first RBI of the season and Drew Stubbs homered for his first extra-base hit Thursday as the Reds backed soft-tossing Bronson Arroyo's eight innings and broke loose for a 6-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals that averted a three-game sweep. "It's been so long since we played a game like that," manager Dusty Baker said. "I'm just glad our offense got clicking." Ryan Ludwick also homered for the Reds, who had connected just once in their previous nine games and began the day with a .211 batting average. The Reds picked on Wainwright (0-3), a 20-game winner in 2010 coming off reconstructive elbow surgery that sidelined him all of 2011. Wainwright is winless in his first three decisions for the first time in his career. He allowed multiple home runs in consecutive starts for just the second time in his career. "His velocity is a little bit down," Ludwick said. "I feel like we were able to take advantage of it a little bit and in that scenario, you've got to. When he's on, when he gets back to 100 percent, he's one of those guys that sometimes you're lucky to get one run against."

Summitt enjoyed 'great ride'

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Pat Summitt was relaxed, smiling and even cracking jokes — looking and sounding totally at peace knowing she will never coach her beloved Tennessee Lady Vols again. The Hall of Fame coach who just eight months ago revealed she had been diagnosed with early-onset dementia, Alzheimer's type, has turned the program over to longtime assistant Holly Warlick. "It was really a great ride for me," Summitt said Thursday, speaking on the Tennessee basketball court named after her before a crowd of about 200 fans, faculty and friends. "I just felt like it was time for me to step down knowing that Holly was going to be in great hands," Summitt said. "She's a great coach and you know I'm going to continue to support her. You know It's never a good time, but you have to find the time that you think is the right time and that is now." She will become Tennessee's new "head coach emeritus" with the school paying her the $1 million bonus she had been due once she coached her 40th season. There were season-long questions about Summitt's health, but the mood at the press conference was upbeat. Summitt, who turns 60 in June, joked how coming to work every day in her new role and staying around. See RIDE, B4

In doubles action, John Rupard and Christian Colvard defeated Johnny Mitchell and Austin Roberts 8-1. Troy True and Brooks Harrison beat Aaron Tackett and Eric Hushfield 8-5, while the tandem of Mark Thomas and Irvin Juarez beat Austin Merriman and Brett Hill 8-0.

Girls Tennis

The girls tennis team concluded the week with four straight victories, posting wins over East Jessamine, Bourbon County and Harrison County.

In a match Thursday at Harrison County, No. 1 seed Makenzie Waltermire, defeated Sara Barnett 8-0, while the doubles duo of Kayla Harrison and Brooke Powell won their match, 8-3.

Clark is now 5-4 on the season.

at the end of the season. They're starting to believe."

The Lady Cardinals' starting lineup features five eighth-graders, but also has a mixture of veterans including Kolbi Mitchell, Whitney Konkwright and Rebecca Strange. Puckett said getting to know his team took a "little time."

"I haven't been around these girls a whole lot," he said. "With five eighth-graders, it's a lot to learn, not only from my aspect, but theirs as well."

"I had to realize what they could handle and what they can't, trying to get their confidence and their know-how of the game and try to implement my know-how to theirs, and once we get to that, I think we're going to be fine. Like I said, they're starting to buy into the system."

Mitchell, Konkwright and Strange have provided the veteran leadership, along with shortstop Skye Skinner.

"They're leading the team," Puckett said. "These young ladies are just trying their best to get themselves going and realizing they can compete at this level. It's a big difference from playing middle school (softball) to varsity ball and everybody knows that, but they're starting to realize that they can do it and once that gets going, everything else will take care of itself. That's not meaning that they're going to go out and win 20 straight, but it's saying they can (compete with other teams)."

The Lady Cardinals will host "Thrill on the Hill," a round-robin tournament that begins tonight at Cardinal Heights.

Clark will take on East Jessamine tonight at 7:30 p.m., followed by a contest against Powell County set for 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

students may help keep her young.

"I'm getting ready to turn the big one ... yeah 30," Summitt said, after which someone from the crowd chimed in. "Hardly!"

Summitt won more games than anyone else in NCAA college basketball during her 38 years at Tennessee.

And while the ride on the coaching carousel may be over for her, but there are more challenges and honors ahead.

The White House says later this year Summitt will receive the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor.

President Barack Obama said Summitt is an "inspiration" as the coach who has won more games than anyone else in NCAA college basketball history and for her willingness to "speak so openly and courageously about her battle with Alzheimer's."

"Obviously, I didn't see it coming, but that's a tremendous honor," Summitt said of the Medal of Freedom honor.

In her new role at Tennessee, Summitt will report to athletic director Dave Hart.

"I made a choice early in my career to challenge myself to step up my game each and every day," Summitt said. "You can be sure I will take this same attitude into my new role as head coach emeritus and continue to teach our players the same commitment. I can promise you ladies I'm here for you. Trust me that that will happen."

She capped her opening remarks by calling Warlick, her former player and assistant the past 27 years, over and handing over her whistle. Summitt said it was time, as she hugged Warlick with the crowd giving them a standing ovation.

"I know this works because I've heard it a lot of times," Warlick said, referring to the whistle.

Warlick isn't the only coach on the move. Tyler Summitt, Pat's son, will be an assistant women's coach at Marquette.

"This was her decision, and I think that she took time after the season, thought about everything and the thing my mom's always taught me is to put the team before yourself," Tyler Summitt said. "She really felt like this was the best thing for the Lady Vol program. She's still going to be in a mentoring role."

Tennessee football coach Derek Dooley, men's basketball coach Cuonzo Martin along with members of the Lady Vols basketball team were among those in the crowd.

Summitt tried to show people during the season that it was possible to function even in the face of dementia and Alzheimer's.

CLARK COUNTY'S VOICE FOR MORE THAN 130 YEARS

The Associated Press
Legendary coach Larry Brown accepted the job at Southern Methodist University Thursday. Brown, 71, has been out of coaching the past two seasons.

Brown returns to college ranks, takes over at SMU

DALLAS (AP) — Larry Brown is returning to college to get back into coaching.

The 71-year-old Hall of Fame coach was hired Thursday at SMU. It is his first college job in nearly a quarter century, and comes with a struggling program that is headed to the Big East after next season.

"It's a challenge like everything. The greater the challenge, the greater the opportunity," Brown told The Associated Press by phone from his home in Philadelphia.

Brown, the only coach to win both an NBA championship and NCAA title, hasn't coached since leaving the Charlotte Bobcats in December 2010 after the NBA's team's 9-19 start. His contract there was to run through the end of the current season.

SMU hasn't won an NCAA tournament game since 1988, the year Brown led Kansas to the national championship in his last season as a college coach.

"It's not like I haven't been involved. I live in Villanova, I've been to Kentucky's practices the last two years, Kansas practices, Maryland's practices and Villanova. I've probably seen them practice 50 times a year," Brown said when asked about returning to the college level.

"People have to understand, you're coaching college kids in the NBA, so I've found out kids want to be taught, they want to be coached, they want to get better," he said. "I really think the fact that I've had a background in both areas is going to help me."

The Mustangs fired Matt Doherty last month after six seasons.

"Larry Brown is one of the top coaches in the history of the game," said SMU athletic director

Steve Orsini. "He is a legend and has made every team he has ever coached a winner. As we transition into the nation's top basketball conference, the Big East, his leadership will be invaluable."

Details of Brown's deal, including the length of the contract, weren't released by the private school. Brown said he wasn't ready to discuss who his assistant coaches would be. He said he has had plenty of inquiries about joining his staff.

"That's the hardest thing, I think," he said. "I don't have enough jobs to help people that have been great to me. It's been pretty painful in that respect."

SMU will be Brown's 14th job in a four-decade coaching career.

Brown's first coaching job was at Davidson in 1972, though he didn't coach a game there before going to the ABA and then the NBA. He coached at UCLA (1979-81) and Kansas (1983-88) and was the coach of the 2004 U.S. Olympic team that had a disappointing bronze-medal finish.

"We're talking about a Hall of Fame coach that's won both an NCAA and NBA championship and is the only coach to ever do so," said Kentucky coach John Calipari, who just won the NCAA championship and was an assistant under Brown at Kansas from 1983-85. "He's been a friend and mentor for years and I look forward to watching him take SMU to new heights."

SMU last went to the NCAA tournament in 1993, five years after beating Notre Dame in a first-round game.
